ISSUE #330 VOL. 21, NO 7 July 1988 Mailing Date: June 23, 1988

Editorial Matters

Last issue, at 94 pages including inserts, was the largest ever. This one, a mere 78 pages long, is one of the fastest. We got back from the ABA convention June 2 and had less than two weeks to complete this issue. Today is June 14, and this is the last piece being written. It should (finally) put us back on schedule, for this month at least. Then there will be the Locus twentieth anniversary party (along with my 51st birthday), and then it's off to Arizona for a couple of days of desert touring before Westercon. Then it's back here on July 5 to work on the next issue.

HELP WANTED HELP

We'll probably fall behind in July because we're short help again. Trevin left in May to spend the summer in Europe, and his replacement left suddenly in early June. We need at least one new full-time worker, and possibly two. The job is as an editorial trainee in Oakland. Send in a resume plus a letter about your interest in sf or fantasy. Include a phone number. We need someone with an excellent memory, who can deal with people, and can deal with an intense job always on deadline. On the practical side, you should be able to use a computer, type, drive a stick shift car, and be prepared to start at a minimal salary for at least three months.
