ISSUE #368, VOL. 27 NO. 3, September 1991, Mailing Date: August 21, 1991

Editorial Matters

This issue has jumped to 80 pages, thanks to the expanded Forthcoming Books. Our September and March issues will cover nine months worth of forthcoming books, while our December and June issues will cover a mere six months. The difference is mainly because of the timing of information, as well as the space available in the magazine. We've finally decided on the split format - an edited list of new books by author, then a complete list by publisher and month. Of course, we may change our minds again....

There isn't very much news this time around, since it's only ten days since the last issue. Some more material will probably come in at the last minute, but we can't keep to our normal schedule and get this issue out by Worldcon.

HELP WANTED

Shelly decided to leave even earlier than she had originally planned, and will be gone by the time you see this. We've hired one person as a trainee, but are still looking for one more. For details, see the editorial in the last issue.

CORRECTIONS

In our August bestseller list from B. Dalton, the #10 paperback spot should be The Mercenaries by Bill Baldwin (Questar), not Jerry Pournelle (Baen). In the "Other Bestsellers" section, the last two lines
